Staff Updates

Marketing Menu A La Carte

Pro-active in fulfilling our member's individual goals in joining the Chamber, we have evolved an a la carte menu of custom services. These attract more new members, retain members with value-added opportunities and create new alliances. Marketing a business and propelling its brand name to the forefront by targeted public relations is one of our strengths. When we meet with a new member, we assess what their goals are and then suggest ways that the Chamber can help. Our ability to match-make via personalized introductions forges meaningful connections.

One example to share with you is recent new member Hofstra University, based in Nassau County, wanting to raise awareness among Queens business people and residents alike. To achieve this, we recommended that they exhibit at our Expo. Their experience at Citi Field exceeded their expectations in the quantity and caliber of contacts they made there. We then suggested as a follow-up that they invite Queens Chamber members out to their facility for a "meet and greet" cocktail party, enjoyed by 60 Chamber members.

We are currently putting together an open house for Curves and successfully launched the re-branding of the Lexington Marco LaGuardia Hotel (formerly the Wingate).

Please do let us know if your facility is conducive to hosting a Chamber gathering as a method of showcasing your company.

Business Financial Seminars – Tool for Growth

The Queens Chamber of Commerce is launching Fall Financial Business Seminars for 2009. We are very proud to present in a series of 36 sessions a great educational tool for the small businesses in the most populated areas of the borough. We are creating a solid academic series, fulfilling the need of our members looking to penetrate the Hispanic community, the fastest growing ethnic market. The Financial Bilingual Seminars (English/Spanish) are available in other languages such as Chinese and Urdu and will be held at Queens Library branches in Astoria, Corona, Elmhurst, Jackson Heights, Queens Village, Hollis, Far Rockaway, Sunnyside and Woodside.

NYLife, MetLife, H&R Block and Mastercard Hispanic Outreach Program, we will generate tremendous opportunity to a vast sector of our community that need to access to new business and networking opportunities, especially in this hard economic climate.

The Queens Chamber of Commerce encourages the local business associations, community based groups and small entrepreneurs with specific needs to take advantage of this great opportunity to learn, grow and exchange experiences all at no charge in a professional setting.
